For example, a gas pipeline that interfaces with gas LDCs, electric industry customers and other pipeline systems can benefit from multidisciplinary training perspectives from experts in each of those industry sectors.

BWMQ provides expertise development that is very difficult to obtain elsewhere. BWMQ has experts with many years of practical experience in the energy industry who are: attorneys, professional engineers (PEs), CPAs, Certified in Financial Forensics (CFF) professionals, PhDs in economics, experts in cost of capital studies and Certified Depreciation Professionals (CDPs), income tax experts and experts in regulation of the various energy industry segments.

Using the expertise of these professionals, your in house personnel can be trained in depth about topics such as regulatory and financial litigation, establishing depreciation rates, estimating costs of capital, performing financial studies, FERC compliance, FERC accounting requirements, rate design and cost of service practices used in the energy industry, economic issues pertinent to pricing decisions and so forth. These courses can help prepare you for your most challenging issues, such as upcoming rate cases, financial litigation and your emerging business development projects.

Training may be offered to groups of varying sizes within your organization at a very economical cost that eliminates the high cost of your travel that is usually associated with professional development.
