
Planning

Brown Williams, due to its intimate knowledge of regulatory, market, economic and financial trends, is well positioned to assist you with your financial and strategic plans. The firm provides market research, throughput forecasting, supply acquisition planning, competitive assessments, evaluations of new market opportunities, demand-side management, integrated resource planning and transportation rate and energy price forecasting services. We can help you to plan for rate cases and by developing test year throughput forecasts for those filings. Brown Williams has assisted LPG, petroleum product pipelines and crude oil pipelines concerning demand and supply conditions in relation to their market position. The firm has also provided market analyses and evaluations for electric utilities.